Welcome to the Barefoot Retreats Burnham Market International Horse Trials.

We're delighted to be back once again as the 2026 Title Sponsor of the Burnham Market International Horse Trials.

At Barefoot Retreats, we offer a carefully curated collection of luxury self-catering properties - from the remarkable to the quintessential - all nestled along the North Norfolk coastal path, from Snettisham to Holt. Guests can expect a laid-back escape, enjoying a true home-from-home experience in some of the most beautiful, individually owned properties in the region, complemented by our exclusive concierge service.

From private chefs and paddleboard adventures to e-bike hire, seal trips, visiting beauty therapists and babysitters, our trusted directory of local partners ensures every stay is filled with memorable moments and effortless experiences.

With a portfolio of over 130 properties, guests can choose from cosy coastal cottages, dog-friendly boltholes, and stunning barn conversions to spacious family hideaways complete with hot tubs and games rooms. For something a little different, guests can also enjoy a boutique stay at The Railway in Burnham Market - offering eight uniquely designed bedrooms, a fully stocked honesty bar, secluded garden, EV charging, and a sunken hot tub.

We are also thrilled to continue growing our sister company, Simply Norfolk Stays, with its ever-expanding portfolio. While Barefoot Retreats specialises in a carefully curated collection of luxury coastal retreats, Simply Norfolk Stays offers a wider range of Norfolk holiday cottages - from cosy coastal boltholes and countryside escapes to spacious family homes and dog-friendly properties. There truly is something for everyone, whether you're seeking a traditional stay, something quirky, a bijou bolthole for two, or a larger home perfect for group getaways.

We are incredibly proud to support this fantastic event, a brilliant day out for all the family. Alec and his team do an outstanding job delivering such a vibrant and varied experience year after year. It's also a wonderful opportunity to watch some of the sport's top competitors in action so early in the eventing season.

We'll be on site throughout the three days of competition, alongside our Gin Bar, The Juniper Box, and our lifestyle shop, Barefoot Living. Do come and see us, whether you're planning your next Norfolk getaway, have a holiday home you'd like to maximise, or simply fancy a chat about the horse trials over a gin and tonic. We'd love to welcome you.

Wishing you a fantastic time at the event!

Emma Mason & all the team at Barefoot Retreats

Chairman's Welcome

The Organising committee and I warmly welcome all competitors, owners, helpers, spectators, volunteers and sponsors to our 27th running of Burnham Market International Horse Trials. Alongside all of our sponsors, we are delighted to again welcome back Barefoot Retreats as our title sponsor; the Burnham Market-based luxury holiday cottage company has supported us since 2017.

Another invaluable cog in the organisation of the event is our vast army of loyal volunteers who give up their time so willingly, many having done so for years.

Every year Burnham Market International attracts a raft of the world's leading riders with both their top horses and up-and-coming youngsters. We appreciate the effort so many make to come to Norfolk and compete at our event – this continued support makes all the hard work worthwhile.

For new visitors to Sussex Farm I recommend taking a walk up the hill to the viewing mound where you can see much of the cross-country course and, on a clear day, glimpse the sea. Do also look around the various trade stands in the main showground and enjoy the arena attractions. I hope you all have a great day.

In the Heart of the Action: Alec Lochore's Olympic Experiences

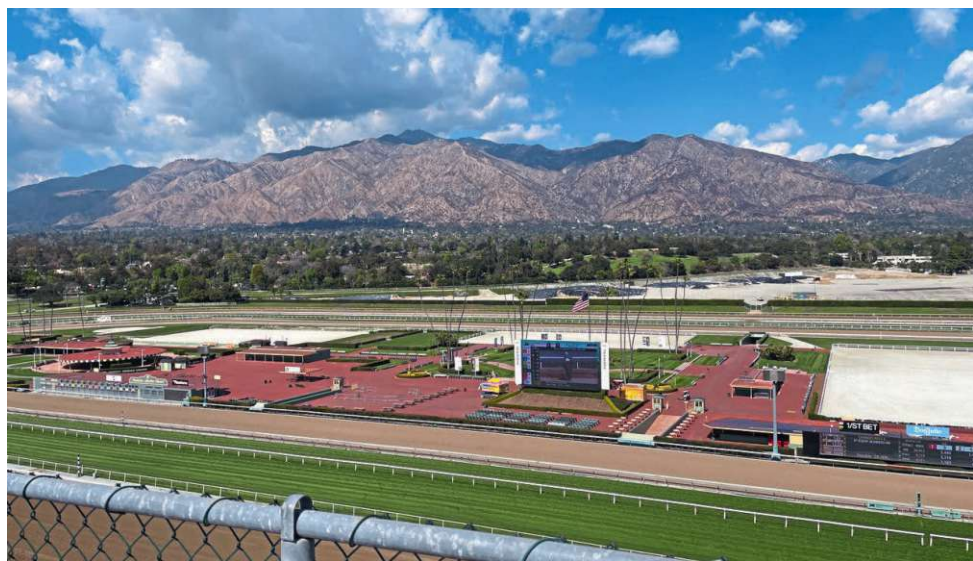

Barefoot Retreats Burnham Market's Event Director and cross-country Course Designer, Alec Lochore, has been at the helm since 1999 when he ran his first event here at Sussex Farm. Since then he has travelled the world fulfilling a range of appointments, including FEI Technical Delegate, Olympic Eventing Manager and Course Designer.

The next major feather in his cap will be his impending great challenge as the cross-country course designer for the Los Angeles 2028 Olympics.

"My roles in LA are two-fold," Alec explains. "There is the Eventing Course Designer role, but I also have a consultancy role there with the organisation, creating two completely separate commitments.

"I think being asked to design the cross-country course is probably my career highlight so far. It was genuinely a complete surprise. I'd done a feasibility study for the venue last year wearing my consultancy hat, and there is now a lot of work going on – I think it will be a true Olympic venue. I was humbled to get the call."

Alec attended the 2000 Sydney Olympics as a spectator. “Fast forward eight years to Beijing/Hong Kong where I was a sector steward on the cross-country. That was my first involvement inside how the Olympics works and how completely they differ to other competitions. Albeit, Hong Kong was slightly different because we were so removed from Beijing. It wasn’t a full Olympic experience.

“And then in early 2010, when I was appointed Eventing Manager for London, that was my first proper role. I loved what I did in London. Being a part of the team was an absolute highlight because of the people that we worked with, and we were home, it was London – and ultimately because it was so successful and went so well.”

He then went to Rio 2016 as Technical Delegate, then Tokyo 2020 as Eventing Competition Manager again. “In Paris, I didn’t go at all. I went to the venue a few times for various reason, but had no role at the Games.”

Los Angeles 2028 presents some unique challenges. Alec explains: “Half the course is currently asphalt – we have 1,000m or more of tarmac to turn into grass. One of the water jumps will be where there is currently tarmac, so there’s quite a lot of work to do. We are also restricted about when we can do the work because there are 2,000 resident racehorses on site, training every day for 10 months of the year from 5am to 10.30am. It’s a very operationally active venue, and they race three days a week, 10 races a day, half of which are on turf and half on dirt... they do this every single week from October through to June.”

Despite the course running inside the confines of the Santa Anita Race Course, which is by definition quite compact, it does mean that competitors will get to gallop across the famous turf where Seabiscuit ran – Seabiscuit’s stable is still there. More recently the legends Zenyatta and Dancing Brave delighted the crowds.

Perhaps surprisingly the site is not flat; there is an 11m drop in terrain from the top of the mile to the finish post. “The whole thing is on a gentle slope so there are plenty of options to create features,” says Alec. “It will be a four-star but being an Olympics you have a broader consideration than you might normally have. There will be more options, although I wouldn’t necessarily call them long routes. You don’t need to go on safari every single time, but different routes will take different amounts of time, so I’ll be providing options. I’ve got a route, and concepts, but am currently providing the licencing department with any theming concepts because rights are always owned by someone! I’m investigating what is and what isn’t possible.

“It’s going to be warm, but it’s a dry heat, and we have learnt so much about heat and its effect on horses. Every Games we learn more and I think we are pretty set up for it now. Notwithstanding, we can never take it for granted; we have to keep making sure that we’re looking after the horses because that is absolutely, singularly, the most important thing.

“I am looking forward to working with some brilliant people to create something special. We want 600 million people watching so I will be talking to commentators from all the different languages, something I started in London, walking the course with them and telling them the story, so they can create really engaging content.”

However, LA is still some time off, and Alec has turned his mind to stand out performances from previous Games.

“In 2012 I think that Sam (Michael Jung) was 11th after dressage, probably the discount score for the German team. And yet he rose through to take the gold, winning again in Rio. That’s a standout moment because it showed that you could be down the order after dressage and still win a gold medal, as was watching Julia Krajewski win gold in Tokyo, the first woman to do so – which is surprising in itself, given the success of women in the sport.

“Team GB winning consecutive team gold medals at Tokyo and Paris was standout, not least because European Champion JL Dublin when ridden by Nicola Wilson was partnered by Tom McEwen.”

Asked about developments in the format of Olympic eventing, Alec says: “With the two rounds of showjumping, I understand we have to distinguish between team and individual competitions. I (and broadcast TV) would love there to be two cross country courses but cost prohibits that. I think we can have an Olympic format so long as it remains completely true to what the sport is.

“We still have three phases. It’s now a three-and-a-half minute dressage test but still has 22 movements in it – it’s just bang, bang, bang. The intensity for both horse and rider is huge – also for the poor judges, 22 marks in three-and-a-half minutes rather than in six! They’ve got to be really on it. I don’t mind that we have a slightly different format, but wouldn’t want to roll it out everywhere, it can be specific.”

So who does he have his eye on ahead of LA?

“There are the obvious ones, headed up by Ros Canter and Lordships Graffalo. He’ll be 16 in two years time. God willing he stays as sound and as brilliant as he is. Then you’ve always got to see what Michael Jung has coming along, and the Americans are going to want to be up there because it’s a home games; Boyd Martin has been in and out of the top two in the world rankings of late. Belgian rider Lara De Liedekerke-Meier has really announced her position on the world stage in the last two or three years, she’s definitely on the rise, and of course you never know what the French are going to do because they are very talented. Ask me again in two years time!”

For now his immediate focus is closer to home and this weekend’s running of Barefoot Retreats Burnham Market International; a great opportunity to see which top horses have come out for 2026 at the top of their game.
